Writing And Madness:

Writing and Madness Shoshana Felman, Martha Noel Evans, 2003 This is the author's most influential work of literary theory and criticism in which she explores the relations between literature philosophy and psychoanalysis

Writing and Madness Shoshana Felman, 2022 Writing and Madness is Shoshana Felman's most influential work of literary theory and criticism Exploring the relations between literature philosophy and psychoanalysis through brilliant studies of Balzac Nerval Flaubert and James as well as Lacan Foucault and Derrida this book seeks the specificity of literature in its relation to what culture excludes under the label madness Why and how do literary writers reclaim the discourse of the madman and how does this reclaiming reveal something essential about the relation between literature and power as well as between literature and knowledge Every literary text continues to communicate with madness with what has been excluded decreed abnormal unacceptable or senseless by dramatizing a dynamically revitalized relation between sense and nonsense reason and unreason the readable and the unreadable This revelation of the irreducibility of the relation between the readable and the unreadable constitutes what the author calls la chose littéraire the literary thing

Cultural Constructions of Madness in Eighteenth-Century Writing A. Ingram, M. Faubert, 2004-11-30 Cultural Constructions of Madness in the Eighteenth Century deals with the misrepresentation of insanity through a substantial range of literary forms and figures from across the eighteenth century and beyond Chapters cover the representation distortion sentimentalization and elevation of insanity and such associated issues as gender personal identity and performance in some of the best as well as some of the least known writers of the period A selection of visual material including works by Hogarth Rowlandson and Gillray is also discussed While primarily adopting a literary focus the work is informed throughout by an alertness to significant issues of medical and psychiatric history

Writing Women's Madness, 1845-1914 Mary Chapman, 2025-08-25 Taking an interdisciplinary approach this book bridges literary studies and the history of medicine to offer a unique perspective on female mental illness in the nineteenth century Demonstrating the importance of writing to psychiatric practice during this period the book moves forward from previous asylum focused scholarship to uncover how written discourse was integral to the creation and development of theories about the female mind During the Victorian era cultural beliefs about femininity combined with an emerging physiological understanding of mental illness to produce a concept of female madness centred on reproductive biology Exploring the textuality of clinical literature and periodicals the book shows how their genre form language and readership shaped the development of gendered psychiatric theory Covering nineteenth century print culture a range of popular and specialist periodicals and delving into little explored sources in the history of psychiatry the book examines key topics of interest such as the mind sciences in the popular press the publishing history of psychiatric textbooks patient literature in asylum periodicals and the early treatment of mental illness at the turn of the twentieth century The book will appeal to researchers working in the fields of periodical studies women s history and the history of psychiatry as well as scholars interested in the medical humanities more broadly Liminal Postmodernisms,1994 Out of Her Mind Rebecca Shannonhouse,2000 Shannonhouse has collected the most affecting finely wrought essays stories and novel excerpts by women writing on madness from classics such as Sylvia Plath s The Bell Jar to Susanna Kaysen s Girl Interrupted Boundaries in Medieval Romance Neil Cartlidge,2008 Medieval romance frequently and perhaps characteristically capitalises on the dramatic and suggestive possibilities implicit in boundaries not only the geographical political and cultural frontiers that medieval romances imagine and imply but also more metaphorical demarcations It is these boundaries as they appear in insular romances circulating in English and French which the essays in this volume address They include the boundary between reality and fictionality boundaries between different literary traditions modes and cultures and boundaries between different kinds of experience or perception especially the altered states associated with sickness magic the supernatural or the divine Lucid Interval George MacLennan,1992 MacLennan approaches the eight writers from a broadly sociohistorical viewpoint and takes into account relevant biographical and medical evidence where available examining their situations as revealed or mediated by their writings Through a series of detailed analyses he argues that these writings bear witness to a progressively increasing degree of psychological inwardness in Western culture This is a process that affects both how madness is experienced by the individual and how it is expressed in subjective writing By the late eighteenth century madness becomes for a significant number of writers and artists an intimately interiorized condition one which implicates their entire affective life It is this subjectivized and existential madness that in the Romantic period and subsequently has been taken to express an inner truth in an increasingly secularized and alienating state of society In taking these developments into account Lucid Interval is able to arrive at a fresh understanding of the appearance in the modern period of such figures as Clare and de Nerval writers who suffer madness as an inner subjective catastrophe but who in the midst of that experience are able to explore it creatively so producing a literature of madness which is a new phenomenon in itself and which sets a troubling precedent for modern culture BOOK JACKET Beyond Écriture Féminine Cathy Helen Wardle,2007 Beyond Ecriture feminine is the first book to be published exploring the work of the contemporary French author Jeanne Hyvrard 1945 from her early novels of the 1970s up to some of her most recent texts Moving critical accounts of Hyvrard beyond a focus upon écriture feminine it identifies the patterns through which her writing repeats and transforms creation mythology her own oeuvre and her own life examining how intertextual repetitions bind her work together into a complex and ever expanding web of allusions and resonances which engages the reader in a process of constant re interpretation challenging notions of linearity and reflecting the chaotic reality of life in the Hyvrardian world BOOK JACKET Anna Kavan Victoria Walker,2023-04-17 This first book length study of Anna Kavan's writing contradicts earlier critical approaches that have figured her writing as sui generis by reading her comparatively alongside her contemporaries especially Jean Rhys Elizabeth Bowen Muriel Spark and Doris Lessing Taking Kavan's fiction as pivotal to understanding trends of experimentalism that emerged across the middle of the twentieth century it offers close readings of her distinctive prose including her early Helen Ferguson texts her writing of asylum incarceration her wartime stories and her postwar novels Observing how her fiction challenges perceived divisions between experimental and realist writing literary and popular genre and late modernist and postwar literatures it focuses on the ways that Kavan's writing undermines fixed or knowable identity and explores the relationship between reality and fiction This study not only brings necessary attention to a neglected writer but also suggests new taxonomies for reading experimental fiction in the mid twentieth century Challenging Gender and Genre in the Literary Text Nuria Capdevila-Argüelles, 2002

Aethlon, 1992 The journal of sport literature The Oxford Literary Review, 1979 Writers & Company Eleanor Wachtel, 1994 Every Sunday radio listeners throughout Canada and in much of the U S tune in to the far ranging and often intimate exchange of opinions and stories between Eleanor Wachtel of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and her extraordinary literary guests In these conversations some of the world's foremost writers from alphabetically Margaret Atwood to Amy Tan explore the influences on their writing their fears and aspirations and their preoccupations artistic personal and political Critics have called Writers to Amos Oz an expert on fanaticism intrigued by the nuances of normalcy Writers Company provides a rare view indeed of writers and their worlds Academy, with which are Incorporated Literature and the English Review, 1898 The Academy, 1898 International Women's Writing Anne E. Brown, Marjanne E. Gooze, 1995-01-16 The first collection of essays to explore the diversity of female identity as it is expressed in the literature of 29 world writers from 15 different countries About Writing Kristin R. Woolever, 1991 This book should be of interest to students and teachers of English at advanced and professional levels
