Neural Circuit Development and Function in the Healthy and Diseased Brain ,2013-05-06

The genetic molecular and cellular mechanisms of neural development are essential for understanding evolution and disorders of neural systems Recent advances in genetic molecular and cell biological methods have generated a massive increase in new information but there is a paucity of comprehensive and up to date syntheses references and historical perspectives on this important subject

The Comprehensive Developmental Neuroscience series is designed to fill this gap offering the most thorough coverage of this field on the market today and addressing all aspects of how the nervous system and its components develop Particular attention is paid to the effects of abnormal development and on new psychiatric neurological treatments being developed based on our increased understanding of developmental mechanisms

Each volume in the series consists of review style articles that average 15 20pp and feature numerous illustrations and full references Volume 3 offers 40 high level articles devoted mainly to anatomical and functional development of neural circuits and neural systems as well as those that address neurodevelopmental disorders in humans and experimental organisms

Series offers 144 articles for 2904 full color pages addressing ways in which the nervous system and its components develop Features leading experts in various subfields as Section Editors and article Authors All articles peer reviewed by Section Editors to ensure accuracy thoroughness and scholarship

Volume 3 sections include coverage of mechanisms that control the assembly of neural circuits

in specific regions of the nervous system multiple aspects of cognitive development and disorders of the nervous system arising through defects in neural development

Neural Mechanisms of Perceptual Categorization as Precursors to Speech Perception Einat Liebenthal,Lynne E. Bernstein,2017-05-03 Perceptual categorization is fundamental to the brain's remarkable ability to process large amounts of sensory information and efficiently recognize objects including speech Perceptual categorization is the neural bridge between lower level sensory and higher level language processing A long line of research on the physical properties of the speech signal as determined by the anatomy and physiology of the speech production apparatus has led to descriptions of the acoustic information that is used in speech recognition e.g stop consonants place and manner of articulation voice onset time aspiration Recent research has also considered what visual cues are relevant to visual speech recognition i.e the visual counter parts used in lipreading or audiovisual speech perception Much of the theoretical work on speech perception was done in the twentieth century without the benefit of neuroimaging technologies and models of neural representation Recent progress in understanding the functional organization of sensory and association cortices based on advances in neuroimaging presents the possibility of achieving a comprehensive and far reaching account of perception in the service of language At the level of cell assemblies research in animals and humans suggests that neurons in the temporal cortex are important for encoding biological categories On the cellular level different classes of neurons interneurons and pyramidal neurons have been suggested to play differential roles in the neural computations underlying auditory and visual categorization The moment is ripe for a research topic focused on neural mechanisms mediating the emergence of speech representations including auditory visual and even somatosensory based forms Important progress can be achieved by juxtaposing within the same research topic the knowledge that currently exists the identified lacunae and the theories that can support future investigations This research topic provides a snapshot and platform for discussion of current understanding of neural mechanisms underlying the formation of perceptual categories and their relationship to language from a multidisciplinary and multisensory perspective It includes contributions reviews original research methodological developments pertaining to the neural substrates dynamics and mechanisms underlying perceptual categorization and their interaction with neural processes governing speech perception
