Ancestral Hopi Migrations Patrick D. Lyons,2003-04-01 Southwestern archaeologists have long speculated about the scale and impact of ancient population movements In Ancestral Hopi Migrations Patrick Lyons infers the movement of large numbers of people from the Kayenta and Tusayan regions of northern Arizona to every major river valley in Arizona parts of New Mexico and northern Mexico Building upon earlier studies Lyons uses chemical sourcing of ceramics and analyses of painted pottery designs to distinguish among traces of exchange emulation and migration He demonstrates strong similarities among the pottery traditions of the Kayenta region the Hopi Mesas and the Homol ovi villages near Winslow Arizona Architectural evidence marshaled by Lyons corroborates his conclusion that the inhabitants of Homol ovi were immigrants from the north Placing the Homol ovi case study in a larger context Lyons synthesizes evidence of northern immigrants recovered from sites dating between A D 1250 and 1450 His data support Patricia Crown s contention that the movement of these groups is linked to the origin of the Salado polychromes and further indicate that these immigrants and their descendants were responsible for the production of Roosevelt Red Ware throughout much of the Greater Southwest Offering an innovative juxtaposition of anthropological data bearing on Hopi migrations and oral accounts of the tribe s origin and history Lyons highlights the many points of agreement between these two bodies of knowledge Lyons argues that appreciating the scale of population movement that characterized the late prehistoric period is prerequisite to understanding regional phenomena such as Salado and to illuminating the connections between tribal peoples of the Southwest and their ancestors

Homol'ovi III E. Charles Adams, 2001 Homol'ovi III is the smallest of the seven primary villages comprising the Homol'ovi cluster. The work by Arizona State Museum in the late 1980s that is summarized in this volume was the first since J. Walter Fewkes spent a few days excavating in 1896. Homol'ovi III provides a unique perspective on the development of the Homol'ovi settlement cluster in the late 1200s and through most of the 1300s. Founded by immigrants as a small settlement of six or seven families between 1280 and 1290 on the floodplain of the Little Colorado River, it grew to a community of perhaps 75 people occupying 40-50 rooms by the late 1290s. Abandonment of Homol'ovi III shortly after 1300 correlates with increased stream flow that made its location on the floodplain untenable. In all likelihood, the inhabitants moved upstream 5 km to join occupants of Homol'ovi I. However, the use history of the village was just beginning. In the 1330s and 1340s, Homol'ovi III was used as a fieldhouse, probably by its former occupants, developing into a small farming village of 2-4 families from the 1350s to the 1370s. In conjunction with these seasonal occupations, many parts of the village were remodeled; the small plaza area was constantly in use, and even a small kiva was built. The latest occupation also witnessed use of the plaza as a bird cemetery. The complex history of Homol'ovi III informs us about the details of life along the Little Colorado River over a century of use by ancestral Hopi people. The volume focuses on an in-depth narrative of architecture, environment, and material culture analyses from five years of excavations by the Arizona State Museum and provides detailed information for students of late Pueblo prehistory.
