Essential 120000 English-Polish Words Dictionary Nam H Nguyen, 2018-03-16 The entire dictionary is an alphabetical list of English words and their French equivalent translations It will be very useful for everyone home school students travel interpreting and learning French or English Ca y sownik jest alfabetyczn list angielskich s w i ich francuskich odpowiednik w B dzie to bardzo przydatne dla wszystkich dom szko a studenci podr e t umaczenie ustne i nauka j zyka francuskiego lub angielskiego Znaki wodne papierni Mazowsza 1750-1850 Jadwiga Siniarska-Czaplicka, 1960 Hand Made Paper and Its Water Marks Dard Hunter, 1916 Food for Your Soul Jerzy Gregorek, 2015-10-19 Kate was a 47 year old nurse when she joined my Happy Body 12 week comprehensive class in San Francisco She reported that over the years she had less energy and was becoming weaker She had two goals when she joined the class to lose fat and to gain muscle During the third week of the class I talked about the fact that exercise can result in muscle loss or muscle gain depending on the type of exercise In the middle of the class Kate said that she simply could not find time to exercise When I analyzed her daily activities I felt that I was faced with the impossible There was indeed no way that Kate could exercise Or so it seemed Holding down two jobs all of her time was spent either working or caring for her two sons When I was driving home I thought about this situation and felt as if I had failed Kate There was something in her story that was not acceptable to me the inability to find time to make her life better Back at home I meditated for two hours during which time the poem Who Cannot came to me Who Cannot Every night when I wake up I walk to the kitchen And every morning there is still food on my face How can I stop myself His coach thought for a moment and then told him Think about all those people who stopped themselves from owning and killing and having fun because they finally saw how others suffered Without them we would still have slaves the Holocaust and a world just for men Becoming a man like that is your only chance because there is no one else to force you Don t you expect too much from me Do you really believe I can be a man like that Who cannot When I returned the next week to the class in San Francisco I talked about the process leading to the creation of the poem after which I read it Kate was the last to speak When she began she looked down at the floor The poem took me home in my thoughts prompting me to imagine that my younger son asked me to play with him I told him I cannot He said You always say I cannot after which he turned around and walked to his room I saw myself and what I was doing at the time I was reading a novel I realized that whenever my children want me I am either reading watching a movie or answering emails that did not have to be answered It is not that I did not actually have time It was my belief that I did not have time that prevented me from having time with my children and from exercising Raising her head she said I want to make a plea to myself and to all of you I will never again say I cannot If I ever have to say no it will be based on truth and reality Kate s response triggered a two hour discussion about how we are able to deceive ourselves and how to identify false beliefs that can be the basis of our suffering I was shocked It all happened so fast The switch from the fatalistic belief that something is impossible to the belief that much is in fact possible mesmerized me and prompted me to reflect on the power of a simple poem What I was not able to achieve with extended reasoning a little poem had achieved in only few minutes It opened in Kate a space where she could see the reality of her life honestly without interference from her pre conceived notions When I shared the story with a psychologist friend of mine she told me that research has found that there are mirror neurons that help us to experience vicariously what others experience without actually experiencing it first hand So when your client read the poem she identified with the person in the poem and she was inspired to make changes After reading a poem you might physically experience some pleasant sensations a sudden rush or feeling of warmth in your body This happens because the most primitive part of your brain reacts to what it perceives as being desirable The emotional part of you is locked in the immediate past So if you believe that you cannot go to college for example the emotional part of you will create every possible scenario for you to fail John was a strong man 6 foot 4 and 280 pounds 80 pounds overweight He was always in charge as an athlete as a student and later in business In class he complained that weight management was the only area in which he had failed specifically because of the influence of others in his household John said that almost all of his family members are obese and they do everything to make him obese too If we are like John it is easy for us to angrily blame others in an attempt to cover up our weaknesses I empathized with what seemed like an impossible situation not immediately seeing the flaw in his thinking When he left I went to my mediation room arriving at an understanding of the root cause of John s weakness after more than an hour My first thought was that it is wrong to use all kinds of tricks to get people to eat more But then what occurred to me is that it is also wrong to blame others for our actions America is a country of freedom and we should be able to remove blame from our language by becoming the master of our decisions It is a tough road but a very rewarding one because what lies at the end of it is freedom A person is free if a person has a choice and a person who doesn t have a choice or gives it away is a slave There is no freedom without responsibility If we blame others for our choices we release ourselves from responsibility and thereby weaken ourselves This simple error of thinking needs to be noticed and uprooted through knowledge logic and gracefulness with regard to accepting what needs to be done to correct the error shifting the mind from weakness to strength Taking charge means taking power from those that control us The only way to make this happen is to recognize that we have choices In a free country like America we cannot expect the government to help us with making choices Everyone has a right to express himself For this reason we sometimes feel that we are out of control but the reality is that everything is possible That is why the world is out of control In a communist country and to some degree in socialist countries the government decides what is good for people and makes choices for them In a capitalist country the government does not make decisions for people Everyone is left to make choices for themselves striving for self control As these thoughts rushed to mind the poem Knowing began appearing to me Knowing While looking at a billboard picture of a delicious burger with fries John told his wife No wonder we get fat That s why you think we get fat Mary said just because of beautiful pictures It is not just a beautiful picture John said I salivate while I look at it These food producers should be ashamed Ashamed of what John s mouth started to twitch You know exactly what I m talking about Making our nation obese Would you do anything differently if you were one of them Of course John burst out I would help people to eat just enough So what would you be a philanthropist It s simply not human to make people eat more than they need Is it human to blame Yes Weakness is human So do we become human because we are weak John kept silent for a while Then how can we resist these masters of seduction By knowing what is just enough When John came the next Thursday I told him about the process leading up to the poem and then read it to him After more than a minute he said This poem is depressing me and liberating me at the same time I have used blaming so many times in my life and I hurt many people as a result It is depressing for me to see myself in this light but it is also liberating to me that I don t have to be this person anymore that I have a chance to reverse my wrongdoing He looked at me and said Thank you I got it He stood up ready to leave I always loved food and I will never stop loving it But I will now have a nurturing relationship with it It used to be food producers and I Now it will simply be food and I During the next eight months like clockwork John easily lost his excess 80 pounds of fat The most important thing he said was to apologize for the weakness he exhibited in blaming others for his weight problem pledging never to do this again John for me is the poem Knowing while Kate is the poem Who Cannot The energy that the poems in this collection evoke may not last long without additional cultivation by immersing ourselves in books and friends that support our efforts especially when dramatic change is at stake Each poem here is clarified with a question at the end of the book to engage the reader on a conscious level reinforcing the positive energy Poem by poem question by question discussion by discussion there may grow within us a conviction that one day will empower us to say I can I will I am happy It is a cumulative process A person may say I cannot today but next week or next year after many moments of accumulated willpower may finally say I can It takes time to accumulate enough strength to shift a belief We can identify the instant when a person for the first time says I can There is a journey from the point at which one feels that something is impossible to the point that one realizes that it is actually possible This journey is among the most beautiful things to be experienced And the most rewarding part is that after you experience it you will seek to guide others along the same path Goodness is contagious If a poem is capable of initiating such a journey then we need more poems Since the time that Kate and John experienced their revelations whenever any one of my clients has described impossible situations I have gone to my meditation room and meditated there until a poem showed up These 56 poems all represent stories along the lines of Kate s and John s experiences each one opening a space where we find our creative and active voices inspiring us to improve our ways of
