

TRANSLATING CHILDREN'S LITERATURE

Zeynep Nazlı KOLKIRAN

WHAT IS CHILDREN'S LITERATURE?

Children's literature includes written works and illustrations designed to entertain or instruct young readers.

It encompasses a wide range of works, including acknowledged classics of world literature, picture books, fairy tales, lullabies, and other primarily orally transmitted materials.

The purpose of children's literature is to reflect both the imaginative and

Gillian Lathey

Translating For Children:

Translating for Children Ritta Oittinen, 2002-06 Translating for Children is not a book on translations of children's literature but a book on translating for children. It concentrates on human action in translation and focuses on the translator, the translation process, and translating for children in particular. Translators bring to the translation their cultural heritage, their reading experience, and in the case of children's books, their image of childhood and their own child image. In so doing, they enter into a dialogic relationship that ultimately involves readers, the author, the illustrator, the translator, and the publisher. What makes Translating for Children unique is the special attention it pays to issues like the illustrations of stories, the performance like reading aloud of the books in translation, and the problem of adaptation. It demonstrates how translation and its context takes precedence, can take over efforts to discover and reproduce the original author's intentions. Rather than the authority of the author, the book concentrates on the intentions of the readers of a book in translation, both the translator and the target language readers.

Translating Children's Literature Gillian Lathey, 2015-07-24 Translating Children's Literature is an exploration of the many developmental and linguistic issues related to writing and translating for children, an audience that spans a period of enormous intellectual progress and affective change from birth to adolescence. Lathey looks at a broad range of children's literature from prose fiction to poetry and picture books. Each of the seven chapters addresses a different aspect of translation for children, covering Narrative style and the challenges of translating the child's voice, The translation of cultural markers for young readers, Translation of the modern picture book, Dialogue, dialect and street language in modern children's literature, Read aloud qualities, wordplay, onomatopoeia, and the translation of children's poetry, Retranslation, retelling, and reworking, The role of translation for children within the global publishing and translation industries. This is the first practical guide to address all aspects of translating children's literature, featuring extracts from commentaries and interviews with published translators of children's literature, as well as examples and case studies across a range of languages and texts. Each chapter includes a set of questions and exercises for students. Translating Children's Literature is essential reading for professional translators, researchers, and students on courses in translation studies or children's literature.

The Translation of Children's Literature Gillian Lathey, 2006-01-01 In the last few decades, a number of European scholars have paid an increasing amount of attention to children's literature in translation. This book not only provides a synthetic account of what has been achieved in the field but also makes us fully aware of all the textual, visual, and cultural complexities that translating for children entails. Students of this subject have had problems in finding a book that attempted an up-to-date and comprehensive review of the field. Gillian Lathey's Reader does just this. Dr Piotr Kuhiwczak, Director, Centre for Translation and Comparative Cultural Studies, University of Warwick.

Children's Literature in Translation Jan Van Coillie, Walter P. Verschueren, 2014-07-16 Children's classics from Alice in Wonderland to the works of Astrid Lindgren, Roald Dahl, J.K. Rowling, and Philip Pullman are now generally recognized as literary achievements that from a translator's point of view are no less demanding than serious adult literature. This volume attempts to explore the various challenges posed by the translation of children's literature and at the same time highlight some of the strategies that translators can and do follow when facing these challenges. A variety of translation theories and concepts are put to critical use including Even Zohar's polysystem theory, Toury's concept of norms, Venuti's views on foreignizing and domesticating translations and on the translator's visibility and Chesterman's prototypical approach. Topics include the ethics of translating for children, the importance of childhood images, the revelation of the translator in prefaces, the role of translated children's books in the establishment of literary canons, the status of translations in the former East Germany, questions of taboo and censorship in the translation of adolescent novels, the collision of norms in different translations of a Swedish children's classic, the handling of cultural intertextuality in the Spanish translations of contemporary British fantasy books, strategies for translating cultural markers such as juvenile expressions, functional shifts caused by different translation strategies, dealing with character names and complex translation strategies used in dealing with the dual audience in Hans Christian Andersen's fairy tales and in Salman Rushdie's Haroun and the Sea of Stories.

Negotiating Translation and Transcreation of Children's Literature Joanna Dybiec-Gajer, Riitta Oittinen, Małgorzata Kodura, 2020-05-04. This book offers fresh critical insights to the field of children's literature translation studies by applying the concept of transcreation established in the creative industries of the globalized world to bring to the fore the transformative, transgressional and creative aspects of rewriting for children and young audiences. This socially situated and culturally dependent practice involves ongoing complex negotiations between creativity and normativity, balancing text-related problems and genre conventions with readers' expectations, constraints imposed by established canonical translations and publishers' demands. Focussing on the translator's strategies and decision-making process, the book investigates phenomena where transcreation is especially at play in children's literature, such as dual address, ambiguity, nonsense, humour, play on words and other creative language use. These also involve genre-specific requirements, for example rhyme and rhythm in poetry. The book draws on a wide range of mostly Anglophone texts for children and their translations into languages of limited diffusion to demonstrate the numerous ways in which information, meaning and emotions are transferred to new linguistic and cultural contexts. While focussing mostly on interlingual transfer, the volume analyses a variety of translation types, from established canonical renditions by celebrity translators to non-professional translations and intralingual rewritings. It also examines iconotextual dynamics of text and image. The book employs a number of innovative methodologies, from cognitive linguistics and ethnolinguistics to semiotics and autoethnographic approaches, going beyond text analysis to include empirical research on children's reactions to translation strategies. Highlighting the complex dynamics at work in the process of transcreating for children, this volume is essential reading for students and researchers in translation studies, children's fiction and adaptation studies.

The Role of Translators in Children's Literature Gillian Lathey, 2010-09-13. This book offers a Cultural Encounters in Translated Children's Literature Helen Frank, 2014-04-08 Cultural Encounters in Translated Children's Literature offers a detailed and innovative model of analysis for examining the complexities of translating children's literature and sheds light on the interpretive choices at work in moving texts from one culture to another. The core of the study addresses the issue of how images of a nation, locale or country are constructed in translated children's literature with the translation of Australian children's fiction into French serving as a case study. Issues examined include the selection of books for translation, the relationship between children's books and the national and international publishing industry, the packaging of translations and the importance of titles, blurbs and covers, the linguistic and stylistic features specific to translating for children, intertextual references, the function of the translation in the target culture, didactic and pedagogical aims, euphemistic language and explicitation and literariness in translated texts. The findings of the case study suggest that the most common constructs of Australia in French translations reveal a preponderance of traditional Eurocentric signifiers that identify Australia with the outback, the antipodes, the exotic, the wild, the unknown, the void, the end of the world, the young and innocent nation and the Far West. Contemporary signifiers that construct Australia as urban, multicultural, Aboriginal, worldly and inharmonious are seriously under-represented. The study also shows that French translations are conventional, conservative and didactic, showing preference for an exotic rather than local specificity with systematic manipulation of Australian referents betraying a perception of Australia as antipodean, rural, exoticism. The significance of the study lies in underscoring the manner in which a given culture is constructed in another cultural milieu, especially through translated children's literature.

Translating Picturebooks Riitta Oittinen, Anne Ketola, Melissa Garavini, 2017-10-10. Translating Picturebooks examines the role of illustration in the translation process of picturebooks and how the word-image interplay inherent in the medium can have an impact both on translation practice and the reading process itself. The book draws on a wide range of picturebooks published and translated in a number of languages to demonstrate the myriad ways in which information and meaning is conveyed in the translation of multimodal material and in turn the impact of these interactions on the readers' experiences of these books. The volume also analyzes strategies translators employ in translating picturebooks including issues surrounding culturally specific references and visual and verbal gaps and features a chapter with excerpts from translators' diaries written during the process. Highlighting the complex dynamics at work in the translation process of picturebooks and their implications for research on translation studies and multimodal material, this book is an indispensable resource for students and researchers in translation studies, multimodality and children's literature.

Children's Literature in Translation Jan van Coillie, Jack McMartin, 2020. For many of us, our earliest and most meaningful experiences with literature occur through the medium of a translated children's book. This volume focuses on the complex interplay that happens between text and context when works of children's literature are translated: what contexts of production and reception account for how translated children's books come to be made and read as they are? How are translated children's books adapted to suit the context of a new culture? Spanning the disciplines of Children's Literature Studies and Translation Studies this book brings together established and emerging voices to provide an overview of the analytical, empirical and geographic richness of current research in this field and to identify and reflect on common insights, analytical perspectives and trajectories for future interdisciplinary research. This volume will appeal to an interdisciplinary audience of scholars and students in Translation Studies and Children's Literature Studies and related disciplines. It has a broad geographic and cultural scope with contributions dealing with translated children's literature in the United Kingdom, the United States, Ireland, Spain, France, Brazil, Poland, Slovenia, Hungary, China, the former Yugoslavia, Sweden, Germany and Belgium.

Translating Postmodern Children's Literature Gabriela Stoica, 2012-05

The aim of this book is to bring into focus the web of intricacies in which the translator finds himself/herself in order to provide a set of pertinent tools for his/her trade. It attempts to design a tentative translation model as an outcome of children's expectations of texts translated from English into Romanian, as evinced from the results of the questionnaire applied. The subsequent case studies trace the way translation norms and conventions have been systematically applied both from a diachronic and synchronic perspective and the way they comply on the one hand with the comprehensive theoretical framework adopted and on the other hand with children's expectations. Furthermore, the textual analysis dwells upon creative translation at phonological, semantic, syntactic and pragmatic level. Translating children's literature is indeed a case apart and the problems the translator encounters in this line of work call for intuitive knowledge and sensitive apprehension of childhood, matched by the challenge of finding creative solutions, time and again.

Mediating Practices in Translating Children's Literature Joanna Dybiec-Gajer, Agnieszka Gicala, 2020-12-08

The goal of the book is to investigate mediating practices used in translation of children's and young adults' fiction, focusing on transfer of contents considered controversial or unsuitable for young audiences. It shows how the macabre and cruelty, swear words and bioethical issues have been affected in translation across cultures and times. Analysing selected key texts from Grimm's tales and Hoffmann's Struwwelpeter to Roald Dahl's fiction, it shows that mediating approaches, sometimes infringing upon the integrity of source texts, are still part of contemporary translation practices. The volume includes contributions of renowned TS scholars and practitioners working with a variety of approaches from descriptive translation studies and literary criticism to translation pedagogy and museum studies. The angle of looking into the topics is fresh and acute and I wholeheartedly recommend the book for readers from scholars to parents and school teachers for all adults taking a special interest in and cherishing children and their literature.

Heartless Children Salvatore Ciancitto, 2010

In the last thirty years, scholarly interest in the translation of Children's Literature has increased. Translation Studies and Children's Literature are the fields of study and research at the centre of the present work. Both are almost new disciplines and share a common history as relegated to an inferior status and considered as a part of other disciplines. Thus, this work intends to investigate the situation of Children's Literature in Translation in Italy, taking as a case study Peter Pan by J. M. Barrie.

in a diachronic perspective in order to individuate the translation strategies throughout the time and detect any change of attitude in translating for children The book focuses on the idea that adult ideology has always tried to shape Children s Literature in translation according to its main didactic goals Thus texts were subjected to manipulations which resulted in the end in a different text than the original Through a brief history of translation studies and children s literature the book will examine studies on translations for children accounting for the translation of children s books in Italy Back cover
