Islamic Objects in Seventeenth-Century Italy Federica Gigante, 2025-08-31 This book reassesses the idea that Islamic objects in seventeenth century Italy were considered mere curiosities sparking no cultural or historical interest It focuses on Italy s largest collection of Islamic artefacts of the time assembled by the Medici agent and Bolognese nobleman Ferdinando Cospi in his public gallery the Cospi Museum Through an extensive investigation of inventories letters and archival documents the book follows the objects through the various paths which took them from the eastern shores of the Mediterranean through North African cities to Livorno Florence and finally Bologna These paths reveal the presence of a network of enslaved Turks Arab scholars Egyptian fishermen and Armenian merchants all responsible for importing both the items and their stories biographies and anecdotes to Italy The book thus brings forward to the seventeenth century a phenomenon of cultural inquisition that was thought to start only a century later The Lyle Price Guide to Collectibles and Memorabilia Anthony Curtis, 1990 Each of the more than 3 000 items listed in nearly 200 categories is accompanied by a new black and white photograph that highlights distinguishing features of the piece in question as well as current market value

C-Comm (1893) James Augustus Henry Murray, 1893 Stream Flow Data of Illinois Illinois. Moore traces the history of English spoons explaining the many changes in style and form and exploring the corresponding social position through the ages. Spoons that once graced medieval ducal tables appear alongside those of base metal used by commoners. This is a beautiful history of an implement that has always held great fascination for collectors. The author examines the Arts and Crafts Movement's contributions to European designs at the end of the nineteenth century and shows how this influence was revisited by British designs over the following decades whilst also offering the collector guidelines to follow should they find an antique spoon of unknown origin and date.
