Mind Time Benjamin Libet, 2009-07 Our subjective inner life is what really matters to us as human beings and yet we know relatively little about how it arises Over a long and distinguished career Benjamin Libet has conducted experiments that have helped us see in clear and concrete ways how the brain produces conscious awareness For the first time Libet gives his own account of these experiments and their importance for our understanding of consciousness Most notably Libet's experiments reveal a substantial delay the mind time of the title before any awareness affects how we view our mental activities If all conscious awarenesses are preceded by unconscious processes as Libet observes we are forced to conclude that unconscious processes initiate our conscious experiences Freely voluntary acts are found to be initiated unconsciously before an awareness of wanting to act a discovery with profound ramifications for our understanding of free will How do the physical activities of billions of cerebral nerve cells give rise to an integrated conscious subjective awareness How can the subjective mind affect or control voluntary actions Libet considers these questions as well as the implications of his discoveries for the nature of the soul the identity of the person and the relation of the non-physical subjective mind to the physical brain that produces it Rendered in clear accessible language Libet's experiments and theories will allow interested amateurs and experts alike to share the experience of the extraordinary discoveries made in the practical study of consciousness
