Athenian Tragedy in Performance Melinda Powers,2014-05-01 Foregrounding critical questions about the tension between the study of drama as literature versus the study of performance Melinda Powers investigates the methodological problems that arise in some of the latest research on ancient Greek theatre She examines key issues and debates about the fifth century theatrical space audience chorus performance style costuming properties gesture and mask but instead of presenting a new argument on these topics Powers aims to understand her subject better by exploring the shared historical problems that all scholars confront as they interpret and explain Athenian tragedy A case study of Euripides s Bacchae which provides more information about performance than any other extant tragedy demonstrates possible methods for reconstructing the play's historical performance and also the inevitable challenges inherent in that task from the limited sources and the difficulty of interpreting visual material to the risks of conflating actor with character and extrapolating backward from contemporary theatrical experience As an inquiry into the study of theatre and performance an introduction to historical writing a reference for further reading and a clarification of several general misconceptions about Athenian tragedy and its performance this historiographical analysis will be useful to specialists practitioners and students alike

The Theatre of Dionysus in Athens Arthur Pickard-Cambridge, 1956 Greek Romans and Roman Greeks Erik Nis Ostenfeld, Karin Blomqvist, Lisa C. Nevett, 2002 In its first three centuries the Roman Empire expanded politically at the same time as Greek culture was enjoying its heyday While this created tensions it also occasioned many productive impulses which were mirrored in different branches of cultural life In this collection of papers an assembled team of international scholars from the fields of philology the history of ideas literature epigraphy archaeology and history explores the intercultural aspects of that thriving period Lisa Nevett looks at the extent to which individual households and especially attitudes to women changed under Roman control She presents archaeological evidence of patterns of social behaviour and concludes that a relaxation of restrictions on women took place from the later Hellenistic period onwards prior to the arrival of the Romans Paolo Desideri surveys Greek historiographical literature of the second century AD to find a key to Greek mentality and political ideology in the late Roman Empire The Greeks did not have to give up their civilization and identity Appian and Cassius Dio even created the idea of a Hellenistic rather than a Roman Empire Philip Stadter argues that Plutarch in Lives is counselling the elite class of the Roman Empire and that Tiberius Gracchus in particular would have provided a useful lesson e.g. for the emperor Hadrian Ewen Bowie explores the literary tastes of Hadrian in Latin and particularly Greek poetry including an examination of ancient sources to gain insight into his preferences his own compositions and some of the poems composed by his friends or ministers The Classical Review, 1910 European Architecture in the Twentieth Century Arnold Whittick, 1955
