Original Sin and the Evolution of Sexual Difference Megan Loumagne Ulishney, 2022-11-03 Original Sin and the Evolution of Sexual Difference develops an interdisciplinary conversation between evolutionary biology feminist philosophy and theology in order to illuminate the entanglement of Christian thinking about original sin with theologies of sexual difference It then assesses the opportunities for rethinking original sin and its implications for theologies of sexual difference in light of developments in evolutionary biology and feminist theology and philosophy Despite some resistances in the present age to conceptions of both original sin and meaningful sexual differences this study argues that both can provide essential insights that help to make sense of some of the features of human life in the twenty first century especially the stubborn persistence of inequality poverty environmental degradation and the pernicious patterns of sexual violence and abuse that have been uncovered by the MeToo movement To this end Megan Loumagne Ulishney marshals resources from a variety of places Augustine of Hippo feminist theology the Extended Evolutionary Synthesis John Paul II and a new group of feminist philosophers known as the New Feminist Materialists to develop an analysis of original sin and sexual difference that is grounded in both scientific and theological insights about creaturely life The project cultivates a sense of wonder at the diversity and unpredictability of human biology a value for the role of creativity in the human participation that partially shapes our ongoing evolution and humility about the extent to which we can predict and control the future of the evolution of our species It illuminates the interdependencies that define creaturely life the persistent entanglement of nature and culture the centrality of desire to human identity and behaviour and the role played by biology in the transmission of sin It develops a vision of material life as evolving generative and imbued with activity but also as simultaneously infected with sin and saturated with the divine

Struggles for Peace and Justice Karl-Julius Reubke, 2020-06-16 This work by Karl Julius Reubke embodies labours of experience and reflection spanning almost 20 years It is rich with many kinds of detail but above all

Reubke's work accomplishes something the late German philosopher Hans Georg Gadamer called a Horizontverschmelzung a merging of horizons in service of an act of understanding. Reubke a German himself a former chemist a follower of Rudolph Steiner a self-taught Sanskrit scholar and translator of ancient texts sympathetically merges those horizons with an equally complex set of horizons arising from India the post-colonial search for a coherent tradition in one of the oldest civilizations the emergence of early modern spiritual and nationalist thinking the complex challenges posed by Gandhi's ethico-spiritual vision and then finally from the contemporary India driven and riven by the forces of globalization the horizon of a civil social movement inspired by Gandhi and Vinobha namely Ekta Parishad. Reubke describes this movement inspired and led by P V Rajagopal from the inside with a personal touch and a uncannily reflective eye. All of this is an accomplishment of some note and worthy of our attention especially as we now turn to confront how we as people of the planet will face the ecological disaster our way of living has created. This too is a task of comprehension which Hannah Arendt described as the work of the unpremeditated facing up to and resisting of reality whatever it may be. Paul Schwartztruber Independent Scholar and Activist Halifax Canada. If you wish to know what Satyagraha is all about read this candid reflective account of the struggle for freedom and justice Gandhi and his contemporaries waged during the twentieth century and P V Rajagopal and Ekta Parishad have been engaged in during the 21st. Extremely timely and morally challenging. Manoranjan Mohanty Former Professor of Political Science University of Delhi New Delhi India. This book is invaluable in challenging us to develop nonviolent mass movements addressing the needs of those who are oppressed and suffering the most the impoverished the exploited those thrown off their lands adivasis women and why such movements are necessary for greater peace and justice. Douglas Allen Professor of Philosophy The University of Maine USA. This brilliant book the first major scholarly study of Ekta Parishad demonstrates how rights-based mass mobilisations in contemporary India adapt Gandhian ideas in their struggle for justice and in negotiating state politics and policies with grit and compassion. Arnab Roy Chowdhury Assistant Professor Higher School of Economics HSE Moscow Russian Federation. This impressive volume addresses the topic which is possibly the most important of our time global solidarity. And it does so from the perspective of the global South drawing especially on Gandhi and Ekta Parishad. The result is a very unique combination of scholarship and vision for the future that is a must read for all students of India and Indian thought but also for those looking for inspiration in the times of global crisis and the return of nationalisms and fascisms. Boike Rehbein Professor Humbolt University Berlin Germany. In a world in deep need of global solidarity as we enter an era challenged with the Covid-19 pandemic global economic devastation the continuing epidemic of racism and with an existential climate crisis Ekta Parishad shines a bright new light for humanity and our human challenges. This book and this organization confront these challenges boldly and head on. Jai Jagat.
