Unending Frontier:

The Unending Frontier John F. Richards, 2003-05-15 John F. The Global Lives of Things Anne Gerritsen, Giorgio Riello, 2015-11-19 The Global Lives of Things considers the ways in which things ranging from commodities to works of art and precious materials participated in the shaping of global connections in the period 1400-1800. By focusing on the material exchange between Asia, Europe, the Americas, and Australia, this volume traces the movements of objects through human networks of commerce, colonialism, and consumption. It argues that material objects mediated between the forces of global economic exchange and the constantly changing identities of individuals as they were drawn into global circuits. It proposes a reconceptualization of early modern global history in the light of its material culture by asking the question: what can we learn about the early modern world by studying its objects? This exciting new collection draws together the latest scholarship in the study of material culture and offers students a critique and explanation of the notion of commodity and a reinterpretation of the meaning of exchange. It engages with the concepts of proto-globalization, the first global age, and commodities consumption. Divided into three parts, the volume considers in Part One: Objects of Global Knowledge; in Part Two: Objects of Global Connections; and finally in Part Three: Objects of Global Consumption. The collection concludes with afterwords from three of the leading historians in the field: Maxine Berg, Suraiya Faroqhi, and Paula Findlen, who offer their critical view of the methodologies and themes considered in the book and place its arguments within the wider field of scholarship. Extensively illustrated and with chapters examining case studies from Northern Europe to China and Australia, this book will be essential reading for students of global history.

Humans Versus Nature Daniel R. Headrick, 2020. Since the appearance of Homo sapiens on the planet hundreds of thousands of years ago, human beings have sought to exploit their environments, extracting as many resources as their technological ingenuity has allowed. As technologies have advanced in recent centuries, that impulse has remained largely unchecked, exponentially accelerating the human impact on the environment. Humans versus Nature tells a history of the global environment from the Stone Age to the present, emphasizing the adversarial relationship between the human and natural worlds. Nature is cast as an active protagonist rather than a mere backdrop or victim of human malfeasance. Daniel R. Headrick shows how environmental changes, epidemics, climate shocks, and volcanic eruptions have molded human societies and cultures, sometimes overwhelming them. At the same time, he traces the history of anthropogenic changes in the environment: species extinctions, global warming, deforestation, and resource depletion back to the age of hunters and gatherers and the first farmers and herders. He shows how human interventions such as irrigation systems, overfishing, and the Industrial Revolution have in turn harmed the very societies that initiated them. Throughout, Headrick examines how human-driven environmental changes are interwoven with larger global systems, dramatically reshaping the complex relationship between people and the natural world. In doing so, he roots the current environmental crisis in the deep past.

Hunger for the Wild Michael L. Johnson, 2007. Americans have had an enduring yet ambivalent obsession with the West as both a place and a state of mind Michael L Johnson considers how that obsession originated how it has determined attitudes toward and activities in the West and how it has changed over the centuries
