Finance & Development ,September 2005 International Monetary Fund. External Relations Dept.,2005-09-16 This paper explores why increased aid flows require economic policymakers to confront some specific issues Ensuring that increased aid promotes growth and reduces poverty is certainly the most important task Empirical studies offer only mild support for aid boosting growth However one study suggests that once one excludes the aid flows aimed at political and humanitarian goals a positive net effect is observed for the remaining aid focused on economic objectives This paper also outlines the roles to be played by development partners for making the aid being properly utilized for boosting growth

Land Management Information Systems in the Knowledge Economy ,2007 The economies of most African countries rely heavily on agriculture and other land and land based activities such as tourism mining and livestock production Indeed these are the core activities through which African countries participate in the global economy Moreover land is key to food security and the social cultural needs of most communities in Africa It has also been established that the performance of most sectors of the economies of African countries is indeed tied to that of the land sector The management of this sector must therefore be accorded priority attention in all countries in order to unlock the overall performance of national economies This is best done through comprehensive land policies developed to address all the cross sectoral needs and the unique circumstances in each of the countries It is in response to this challenge that the African Union AU the African Development Bank AfDB and the Economic Commission for Africa ECA embarked on an exercise to develop a continental framework to guide land policy formulation and implementation in AU member States However the effective formulation and implementation of land policies can only be best done in circumstances where all the land information necessary is availed in a suitable timely and up to date form to enable expedient decision making by the policy planners in each of the sectors provided by publisher
