Business      SUMMARY - Smart Choices: A Practical Guide To Making Better Decisions
By John S. Hammond, Ralph L. Keeney, and Howard Raiffa. Shortcut Edition, 2021-06-16. Our summary is short, simple, and pragmatic. It allows you to have the essential ideas of a big book in less than 30 minutes. By reading this summary, you will discover how to make better decisions more efficiently. You will also discover how to be more confident about yourself, avoid frustration from making the wrong choice, seize more opportunities, find solutions to difficult problems, improve your life. How do you make a decision? The question may seem pointless since deciding seems simple. In reality, making a good decision is a skill that is never learned yet it is one of the most useful. Take your life, for example, it is the result of the thousands of choices, big and small, that you have made over the years. Perhaps you regret some of them, perhaps you are proud of others. Either way, you are destined to be faced with decisions throughout your life, and that must never leave room for arbitrariness. Smart Choices brings together more than 100 years of psychological research on the best ways to make decisions; reading it will save you from frustration and bad choices. Master the art of decision making. Buy now the summary of this book for the modest price of a cup of coffee.

SUMMARY Edition Shortcut (author), 1901      Research and Practice in Multiple Criteria Decision Making Yacov Y. Haimes, Ralph E. Steuer, 2012-12-06. During the past two decades, the consideration of multiple objectives in modeling and decision making has grown by leaps and bounds. The nineties, in particular, have seen the emphasis shift from the dominance of single objective modeling and optimization toward an emphasis on multiple objectives. The proceedings of this Conference epitomize these evolutionary changes and contribute to the important role that the field of multiple criteria decision making (MCDM) now plays in planning, design, operational management, and policy decisions. Of special interest are the contributions of MCDM to manufacturing engineering. For example, it has recently been recognized that optimal single objective solutions have often been pursued at the expense of the much broader applicability of designs and solutions that satisfy multiple objectives. In particular, the theme "MCDM and Its Worldwide Role in Risk Based Decision Making" of the XIVth International Conference on Multiple Criteria Decision Making, Charlottesville, Virginia, USA, June 8-12, 1998, represents the growing importance of risk cost-benefit analysis in decision making and in engineering design and manufacturing. In such systems, minimizing the effects of rare and extreme events emerges as an essential objective that complements the minimization of the traditional expected value of risk, along with the objectives attached to cost and performance. These proceedings include forty-five papers that were presented at the Conference. A variety of techniques have been proposed for solving multiple criteria decision making problems. The emphasis and style of the different techniques largely reflect the fields of expertise of their developers.

Decision Making and Effective Management Ibrahim H. Hussney, Decision Making and Effective Management Foundations for developing business The decision making process may seem to some to be a simple matter that can be resolved in a few minutes but the truth shows that this matter is fraught with difficulty and complications especially if this decision is related to the fate of organizations business institutions and companies Decision making is not an abstract process but a process that includes many effects of related variables Among the controls determinants and choices of alternatives in order to resolve matters we find that there is what is called the most appropriate alternative and there is the optimal alternative and each of them has a price and cost Also the decision making process must consider the situation of the decision maker his accumulated experience and other supporting factors and also considers the interaction of the recipient of the decision and decision making process also should consider the effects of the external and internal environment of organizations and also the effects of the interfering environment between them We must differentiate between the concept of decision making and the concept of decision taking The decision making process is a process that passes through several stages starting with identifying the topic or problem and taking note of all the details then moving to the analysis stage followed by the evaluation stage for this topic or problem and then collecting information in order to decide by first proposing appropriate solutions and working on evaluating them so that in the end the best one can be chosen among them The decision taking process refers to the conclusion reached by the decision maker makers after completing the collection of information and ideas about the topic or problem under discussion and finding several alternatives and solutions As for the decision taking process it is the process in which the choice of the most appropriate solution or the best out of a set of choices is in the form of a decision made by a person or persons allowed to do so Today we need distinguished people who create events formulate sustainable strategies set goals that can be achieved and manage difficult situations with their advanced tools and all of this will only come by changing our view of things and going out of the crucible of indoctrination to the spaciousness of innovation
